

THE WALL STREET JOURNAL.

Six Golf Vacations Even Your Golf-Hating Spouse Will Love

With these getaways, if one partner likes links and the other likes lounging there's something for everyone. Here, the best courses and coolest diversions in Scotland, Scottsdale, Napa Valley, Hilton Head, Vietnam and South Africa.

FAIRWAY PLAY Two golf courses at the Silverado Resort play host to the annual PGA Tour event, the Fortinet Championship. SILVERADO RESORT AND SPA

By David Weiss

May 4, 2023 9:00 am ET

LET'S BE FRANK: Old-school golf trips were a handy way to ditch the spouse and fritter away a week with like-minded monomaniacs. The following spots offer course corrections that let both golfers and their better halves pursue their own form of fun, be it a birdie, an eagle, a catamaran cruise or a walk in a “meditation labyrinth.”

Golf isn't the only diversion at Silverado Resort, a 150-year-old landmark in Napa Valley. PHOTO: SILVERADO RESORT AND SPA

2. California: Golf (and Culinary) Courses

In California's Napa Valley, Silverado Resort's 2000-acre grounds are home to two celebrated courses, which play host to the annual PGA Tour Fortinet Championship. The non-golfer can find a win at nearby tasting rooms, such as Prime Solum, or in a boot camp course on grilling, plant-based cooking or Mediterranean fare at the nearby Culinary Institute of America at Copia. And if sipping local vintages isn't one's cup of Chianti, indulging in a Chardonnay Sugar Scrub at Silverado's spa might well be.

From $2,800 a week, SilveradoResort.com